

AMCHAM INNOVATION & IP COOPERATION COMMITTEE'S FIRST MEETING

ON MAY 18, AmCham South China's new Innovation & IP Cooperation Committee held its first meeting at the Sheraton Shenzhen Futian hotel. AmCham South China President Harley Seyedin opened the discussion with remarks on the guidance from U.S. Ambassador Jon Huntsman and Party Secretary Wang Yang that led to the formation of the committee, as well as about what Shenzhen—and both U.S. and Chinese companies in the region—stand to gain from such an effort.

Following Mr. Seyedin's remarks, Bill Weinstein from Beijing Minister Counselor Economic Affairs and officials from Chinese Government discussed Shenzhen-specifics and strategic direction.

AmCham South China IPR Committee Chair David Buxbaum provided insight into the legal and technical aspects of the Committee's future endeavors, while AmCham South China members, including Governor David Hon, shared their company's recent experience at the individual level.
